WELCOME FROM THE ISA PRESIDENT

DEBORAH AVANT

DISTINGUISHED UNIVERSITY PROFESSOR, SIÉ CHÉOU-KANG CHAIR, AND DIRECTOR; SIÉ CHÉOU-KANG CENTER FOR INTERNATIONAL SECURITY AND DIPLOMACY; JOSEF KORBEL SCHOOL OF INTERNATIONAL STUDIES, UNIVERSITY OF DENVER

Welcome to Montreal for ISA's 2023 annual meeting. I am really looking forward to our in-person interactions as we continue to adjust to this everchanging COVID world. Over the course of this year, our conference theme has only become more and more relevant. As I write this note in advance of the meeting, fires rage in Chile, crews are working through the devastating earthquake destruction in Turkey and Syria, the war in Ukraine drags on, separatist violence is making the news in Indonesia, police violence continues in the US, relations between the US and China are spiraling down, protestors around the world are struggling against repressive regimes, and scholars face increasing constraints on their academic freedom. The stakes are indeed high and the struggles real.

My interactions with many of you over this year have led me to believe that those of us who study this complicated world are thinking hard about our roles in it and how to best navigate them. I am thus looking forward to a very rich set of conversations in the 1200 panels in which over 5,200 of you will participate in Montreal. We all owe a tremendous debt to Program Chairs Erica Chenoweth (Harvard University) and Swati Parashar (University of Gothenburg) along with their assistants, Katherine Irajpanah (Harvard University) and Fisseha Fantahun Tefera (University of Gothenburg) for the mountains of work they did to put together this conference. Please thank them when you see them – and congratulate Erica on the birth of their beautiful daughter, Vera!

None of this would happen without the terrific ISA staff, including Jennifer Fontanella, Josephine Anderson, Jason DeAngelis, Sarah Dorr, Liz Fausett-Fuhrman, Courtney FitzGerald, Kat Folker, Lisa Garvey, Tara Guillaume, Mary Hartford, Donalyn Mannegia, Kristin Nacovsky, Nichole Page, Alex Walker, and Corri Zoli – alongside graduate assistants Alexandra Harden, Joel Lorenzatti, and Lauren Perez-Bonilla. These remarkable staff members work with an equally remarkable executive director, Mark Boyer, to ensure our organization of nearly 8,000 members is a productive part of our professional lives.

I give special thanks to my Vice Presidents, Juliet Kaarbo, Arlene Tickner, and Robbie Shilliam, who helped shape everything from appointments to our conference theme to the ISA in the World Initiative. I have really enjoyed our teamwork. I also want to thank Brent Steele who did a wonderful job chairing the ISA in the World ad hoc committee. (If you are curious about this committee's work or want to weigh in, please join us for an open forum on Wednesday from 4-5:45pm.) The Executive Committee has been a tremendous resource throughout the year, and I have very much enjoyed working with Past-President Kristian Gleditsch and President-Elect Laura Shepherd. Finally, I am so appreciative of the membership, including the hundreds who serve on various ISA committees doing the serious work required for a self-governing organization and the many, many others who have organized and/or participated in conferences and virtual events. I have been impressed time and time again by your commitment to what ISA represents. The organization would not be the same without you.

In 2012, then President Beth Simmons marked the first time that the ISA President's gavel was handed from her to another woman (Etel Solingen). It is worth noting that this year, I will not only hand the gavel to another woman (Laura Shepherd), but she will do the same (to Marijke Breuning) in 2024. I hope you will join me for that and celebrating the many award winners on Thursday at 12:30pm. My Presidential address, Between Probability and Possibility, will reflect on how we conduct research and engagement in this fraught time. I would love to see you there and at the reception that follows on Thursday evening. Though the global challenges are substantial, it has been an honor to serve as President to an organization whose members are taking them so seriously. I look forward to seeing you all in Montreal.

WELCOME FROM THE 2023 PROGRAM CHAIRS

WELCOME to the 64th Annual Convention of the International Studies Association!

We are delighted to welcome you to the 64th Annual Convention of the International Studies Association—the first fully in-person ISA convention since 2019. After several years of virtual and hybrid meetings, we are grateful to be gathering in Montreal from March 15 to 18, 2023. It has been a privilege to work with you to craft the 2023 Conference Program, which features more than 4900 individual participants and over 1200 panels, roundtables, and sessions.

This year, the conference explores the theme Real Struggles, High Stakes: Cooperation, Contention, and Creativity. The theme invited substantive reflections on the various overlapping crises currently underway around the globe, and it also encouraged submissions of creative formats in which people could explore ideas in international studies. That's why this year, you'll see some events with novel or experimental formats—from a film screening to informal professional advice sessions to a light-hearted “roast of the ‘-isms’” and more. We are grateful to all of those who submitted excellent proposals and appreciate your patience with our team as we worked to accommodate many requests along the way. We also thank all of those who volunteered to serve as chairs and discussants. We hope the result is a rich and diverse program that will stimulate new ideas, refine work-in-progress, and build effective connections between scholars.

Putting together this program was no easy task. We are indebted to the Caucus and Section Program Chairs who worked tirelessly on crafting panels and roundtables, filling in gaps until the very last minute to make the convention a smooth experience for all. These include: Joseph W. Roberts (ALIAS), J. Simon Rofe, Antoneta Vanc, Pascal Lottaz, & Zach Levey (DPLST), Dennis R. Schmidt (ENGSS), Stephanie Schwartz & Alexandria J. Innes (ENMISA), Prakash Kashwan (ESS), Danielle L. Lupton (FPA), Toni Haastrup & Maria Tanyag (FTGS), Lisa Tilley (GDS), Joseph Harris (GHS), Navnita C. Behera, & Thomas Tiekou (GIRS), George Lawson (HIST), Elizabeth Bloodgood & Jeff Bachman (HR), Ruben Arcos & Melissa A. Graves (ISS), Anita Weiss & Guilherme Lopes da Cunha (IDSS), Vanessa Bravo (ICOMM), Adam Van Liere (IEDUC), Valerie Morkevicius (IETHICS), Kathleen Barrett & Miao-ling Lin Hasenkamp (ILAW), Oliver Westerwinter & Joel E. Oestreich (IO), Anja Jetschke (IPE), Matthias Leese (IPS), Jasen Castillo (ISSS), Isabel Bramsen & SungYong Lee (PEACE), K. Helena Hinkkainen (PDG), Andrei V. Korobkov (POSTCOMM), Jocelyne Cesari & Ahmet Erdi Ozturk (REL), Nalanda Roy (SAWP), Jeff Carter (SSIP), Maurizio Tinnirello (STAIR), Oumar Ba (THEORY), Aakriti A. Tandon (WCIS), Ahmad Qais Munhazim (LGBTQA), Zaynab El Bernoussi (GSCIS), and Carla Martinez Machain & Joseph Young (JSS). Thanks to you all for your extraordinary work!

We are ever grateful for the support, guidance, and leadership of ISA President Deborah Avant, who gave us the opportunity to serve in this role. We also thank previous program chairs—particularly Cullen Hendrix and Ursula Daxecker, our immediate predecessors, for sharing their knowledge and experience.

In preparing the program, we benefited tremendously from the wisdom and assistance of ISA headquarters staff. We are particularly grateful for Mark Boyer, Liz Fausett-Fuhrman, and Alex Walker, whose constant and effective support was essential in developing the program and troubleshooting hiccups along the way. We also offer our gratitude to Jennifer Fontanella, Mary Hartford, Sarah Dorr, Courtney FitzGerald, and the whole ISA staff for their assistance and encouragement.

We thank our institutions, Harvard University and Gothenburg University, for their support.

Last but not least, we thank our families and friends who supported us throughout the process.

We hope that you enjoy the convention and the many possibilities it provides for new and effective intellectual exchanges. We look forward to seeing you in Montreal!

LIMITS OF INTERNET SERVICE

Free basic wireless internet (WiFi) is available throughout all hotel meeting and event spaces for checking email or the online program only. Specific information about which network to connect to for #ISA2023 will vary from venue to venue. You can verify the network details at the ISA registration desk in Parc Mont Royal C at the Fairmont The Queen Elizabeth hotel.

The internet service in meeting rooms does not support remote video use, like Skype, Facetime, or Zoom. Neither ISA nor its AV partners provide support, sound, microphones, etc. for any sort of video conferencing capabilities under any circumstances. If an AV tech is asked for support of streaming video (or anything else outside our contract), they will, on the spot, ask for payment from that individual.

To purchase or use the internet in your guestroom, follow the instructions posted in your room. Note that guestroom internet does not transfer to the meeting spaces.

PANEL & PRESENTATION TECHNOLOGY

ISA will provide the following:

- LCD projector
- Windows laptop computer
- Adobe PDF reader and Microsoft Office software including PowerPoint

DO NOT DISCONNECT THE LAPTOP COMPUTER. Presenters are expected to bring presentations on a flash drive that can be inserted into a Windows-based laptop computer.

Presenters needing technical support in a panel room: Troubleshooting instructions will be posted in each panel room at the podium for presenters' convenience. Please leave these instructions on the podium at the end of your session as they are to be re-used by all presenters throughout the Convention dates.

ISA MEMBERSHIP SERVICES

ISA staff are available at the Convention to assist attendees with membership services including renewals, profile updates, and account questions. Please see the On-Site Registration desk for assistance (available during Registration hours).

Any interested ISA member is encouraged to apply!

THE INCOMING ISA PRESIDENT

LAURA J. SHEPHERD

PROFESSOR OF INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS AT THE UNIVERSITY OF SYDNEY, AUSTRALIA, AND VISITING SENIOR FELLOW AT THE LSE CENTRE FOR WOMEN, PEACE AND SECURITY IN THE UK

Laura J. Shepherd's research focuses primarily on aspects of the United Nations Security Council's 'Women, Peace and Security' agenda, particularly the dynamics of policy formation and governance and the politics of representation in the textual practices of the agenda. Her research has been funded by the UK Economic and Social Research Council (ESRC) and the Australian Research Council (ARC); she has held ARC grants supporting research into UN peacebuilding practices, and the formation and implementation of the Women, Peace and Security agenda at national and international levels, and she was awarded an ARC Future Fellowship to study the relationship between the Women, Peace and Security agenda and counter-terrorism/countering violent extremism initiatives in Australia, the UK, and Sweden. Laura is currently co-Director of the Methodological Innovation research stream of the UKRI GCRF Gender, Justice and Security Hub, which is a multi-disciplinary, multi-national project funded by the UK government. Under the auspices of the Hub, she works on projects exploring the dynamics of donor funding for women's peace work, and the politics of method. Laura prioritises collaborative research and community-building in her research endeavours, and derives the most joy from working with students, in particular graduate research supervision and undergraduate teaching. She tweets from @drljshepherd and blogs semi-regularly for The Disorder of Things.

SELECTED HONORS

Laura was awarded the University of Sydney Vice-Chancellor's Award for Outstanding Teaching and Research, in recognition of outstanding contributions in both research and education in 2021. In the same year, she was the recipient of the ISA Ladd Hollister Service Award for her outstanding service and commitment to the association. Her 2017 book Gender, UN Peacebuilding and the Politics of Space received three awards: the British International Studies Association Susan Strange award for best book in International Studies (joint award, 2018); the ISA Feminist Theory and Gender Studies book award (2019); and the Australian Political Studies Association Carole Pateman book prize (2019). While grateful for all recognition, she is most proud of those awards signalling her commitment to teaching and research supervision.

PROGRAM CHAIRS

Constance Duncombe | Copenhagen

The world faces innumerable challenges, high stakes problems that demand creative and innovative solutions. Catastrophic climate change, an ever-morphing global pandemic, widening democratic decline, rising economic inequality, increasing violence, and worries of geopolitical rivalry and war join deeply entrenched systemic racism, sexism, and other forms of discrimination to create a toxic cocktail. These challenges are largely beyond the abilities of any single actor or entity to address, requiring collaboration, multidisciplinary expertise, and shared political will.

But who gets to participate in, and contribute to, the development of solutions to these global issues? Who has access to spaces of influence, and whose knowledge is considered valid in such discussions? How do the boundaries that demarcate “us” from “them”, “inside” from “outside”, “good” from “bad”, structure and shape both the questions that get asked, and the answers that are offered? How does opening up greater spaces of inclusion change the knowledge landscape of international studies?

This first annual ISA virtual conference creates a space, and with it an opportunity, to reflect on these questions of spatiality, influence, and inclusion in international studies. Ultimately, these are all questions of power, but we specifically invite interrogations of power’s various manifestations and the ways in which boundaries produce, and are reproduced in, our knowledge practices - which are themselves practices of influence and inclusion (or exclusion).

VIRTUAL PROGRAMMING & EVENTS TEAM

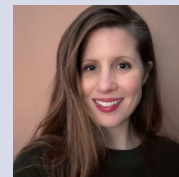

Providing online scholarly and development content for our members isn't new to ISA. Still, the COVID-19 pandemic made clear the need for us to dedicate staff to developing a robust, year-round program of virtual engagement. Since the beginning of 2022, ISA's Virtual Programming and Events Team has been developing and facilitating an extensive slate of virtual offerings, both within headquarters and in collaboration with others. That virtual engagement community includes ISA members, sections, regions, and caucuses, as well as IR practitioners and activists from other spheres. Building from these networks:

- We host panels and roundtables on current events and other IR topics so scholars worldwide can remain in the discussion.
- Our Research Cooperatives expand ISA's drive to cultivate the work of junior colleagues, supporting those who can't participate in early career scholar programs at the Convention.
- With a mission to support IR scholars no matter their career trajectory, we work with experts to provide webinars on professional development in both academia and practice.
- We brought the Sapphire Series, the Convention's premiere program, online to increase the reach of these sessions of immediate and wide-reaching relevance in the discipline.

Follow ISA on social media (details on p. 7) to learn about upcoming virtual events, or contact us at programming@isanet.org with virtual event ideas of your own. We hope to "see" you this summer at ISA's first Annual Virtual Conference!

INTRODUCING ISA FORWARD

ISA is pleased to announce our new philanthropic initiative: ISA Forward. This initiative aims to move ISA into the future by developing a range of sponsored research, internal and external fundraising, and innovative programming to serve our members. At its core, the purpose of ISA Forward is to ensure the global Association thrives well in the years ahead.

ISA Forward has several near and long-term goals. These include:

- Facilitate the social impact of work by ISA members.
- Support ISA members' professional development.
- Increase the services and resources provided to ISA members, ranging from grant programs (e.g., <https://www.isanet.org/Programs/Grants>) to virtual programming and much more.
- Expand ISA membership to further broaden the voices and perspectives on global challenges.

To find out more about ISA Forward and to join our efforts, please contact the team at isa-forward@isanet.org.

INTERESTED IN DONATING TO ISA?

ISA has received more requests to support ISA and fellow members than ever before. We have identified several areas of “greatest need,” and designed multiple pathways to give - but we also welcome your ideas and input!

- Give online: you can make a donation online (<https://www.isanet.org/ISA/Donate>)
 - Give monthly or annually
 - Give in honor of a person, program, or event
 - Make a gift to the ISA Endowment
- Reach out to us to explore other ways to contribute and make a difference (isa-forward@isanet.org)

WAYS TO MAKE AN IMPACT

Your support and contributions make a difference - whether by volunteering at ISA conferences and events, sponsoring mentorship, training, and programmatic efforts, donating to conference travel grants or designing new diversity initiatives. Reach out to our team at isa-forward@isanet.org to learn more about these programs.

For more information about donating to ISA, please visit www.isanet.org/ISA/Donate

RECOGNIZING OUR SUPPORTERS

In these challenging times, we wish to express our sincere appreciation to our donors for their loyalty and generosity in their support for ISA.

DOES THE UN MODEL STILL WORK? CHALLENGES AND PROSPECTS FOR THE FUTURE OF MULTILATERALISM*

Wednesday, March 15: 1:45pm - 2:45 pm

Hosted by International Political Science Association (IPSA)

Since the start of the 21st century, the multilateral system created after the Second World War has been accused of being fragmented, unrepresentative and ineffective, and this dwindling confidence has had an impact on global governance, democracy, trade and investment, the environment, human rights and many other areas. In this sense, the United Nations' 75th anniversary in 2020 occurred at a time of great turmoil and remains a controversial model of multilateralism. As argued by the authors of this collective work, there is a need for a multilateral system that is inclusive, networked and effective. This edited volume, inspired by the International Political Science Association's conference "The UN at 75" held in October 2020, consists in a modern, far-reaching overall contribution to the international debate on multilateralism. Composed of original articles from academics and policy notes from practitioners, this book attempts to draw up the state of multilateralism through the UN model and identify potential ways to address its challenges and shortcomings.

* Co-edited by Kim Fontaine-Skronski (IPSA), Valériane Thool (University of Sherbrooke) and Norbert Eschborn (KAS Canada).

ISA DISSERTATION COMPLETION FELLOWSHIP

The International Studies Association (ISA) invites applications for a new graduate student fellowship for 2023-2024. This award targets students in the later stages of their Ph.D. program (typically the final 2 years). The Fellowship intends to help students offset the costs incurred due to research and writing activities necessary for successful dissertation completion. The Fellowship is open to applicants from across the social sciences and humanities working in the broad field of International Studies.

Applicants may request up to $5000 to cover expenses related to the costs of the final stages of dissertation research and writing. Preference will be given to students without access to other funding sources to assist with dissertation completion. Funds may be used only to support dissertation completion; however, the committee interprets such expenses broadly.

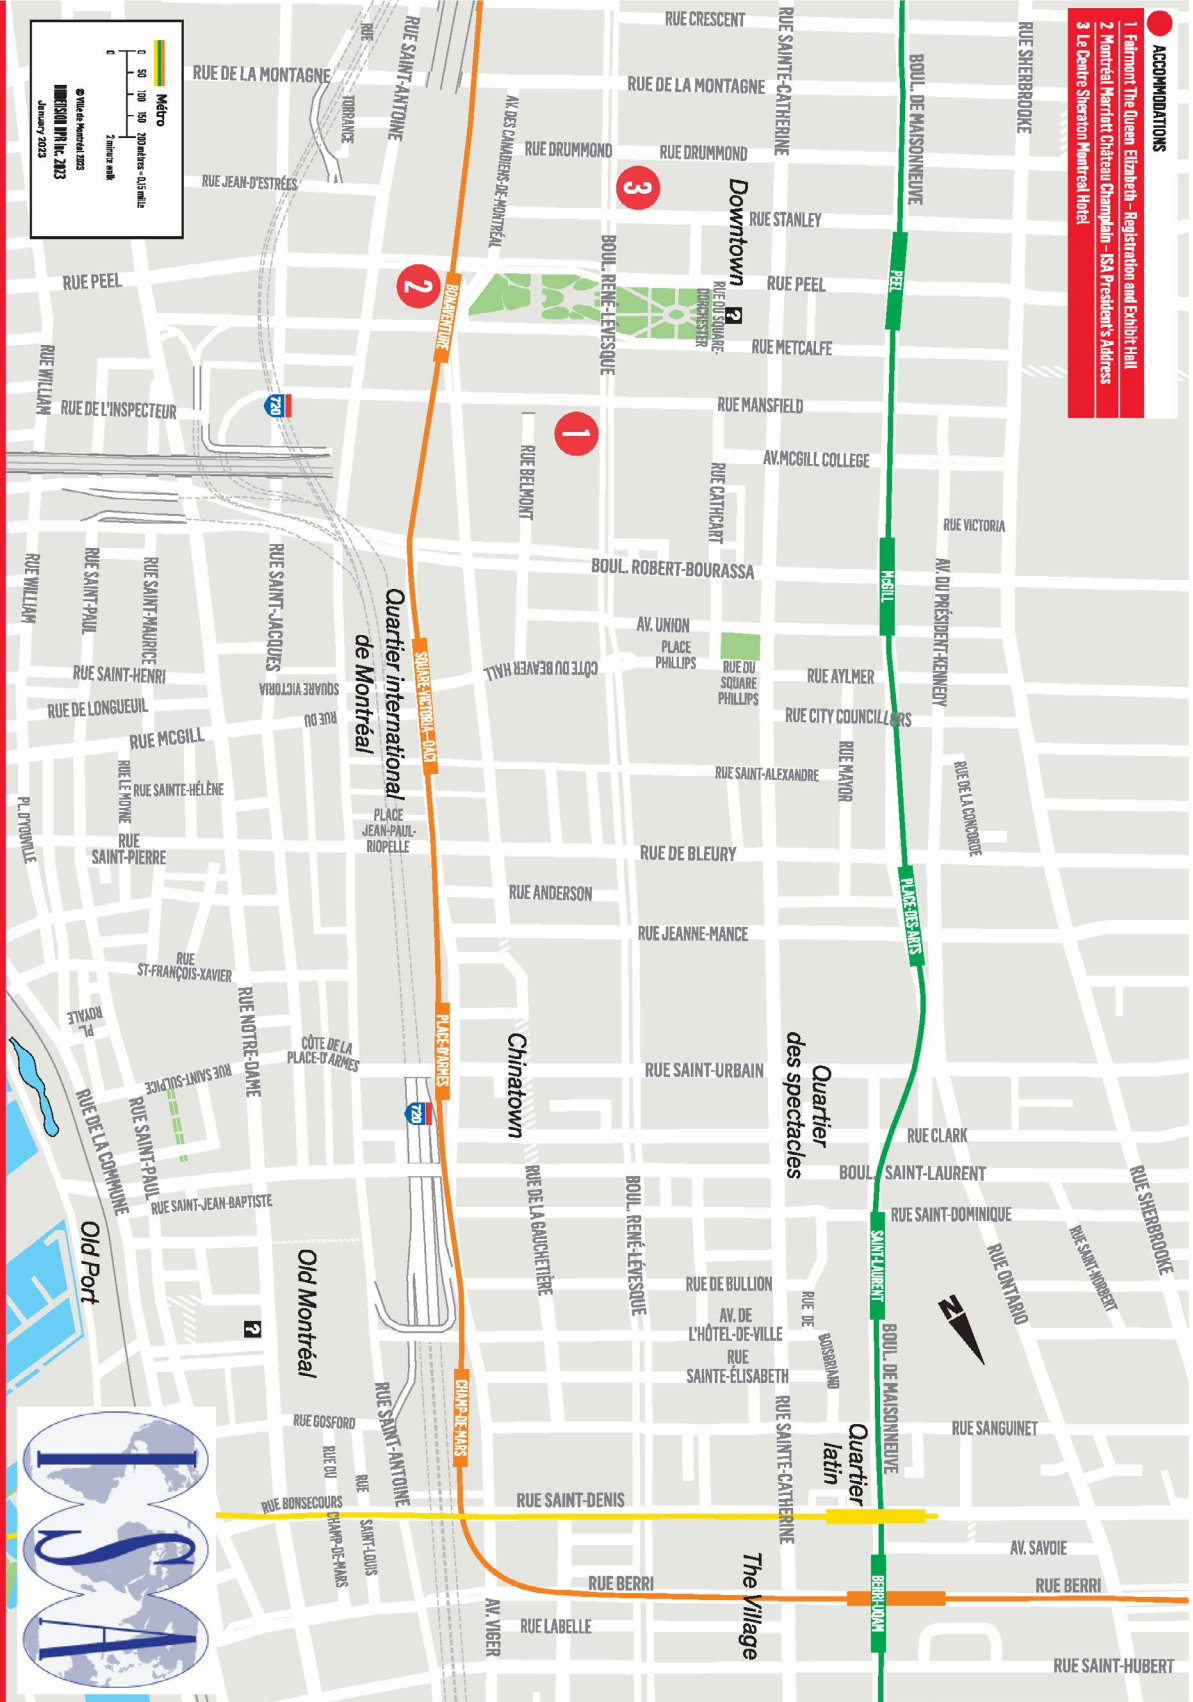

Visit <https://www.isanet.org/ISA/Governance/Committees/Dissertation-Fellowship/Call> learn more about this opportunity!

8:00 AM Career Course: Engaging Academia with the Intelligence Community and Careers in

12:00 PM Intelligence

Salon B, Le Centre Sheraton Montreal Hotel - This interactive workshop focuses on how those in academia can better connect and share their expertise with the Intelligence Community. It also addresses what the Intelligence Community is looking for when hiring and how best to engage with recruiters.

This Career Course is open to pre-registered, pre-paid attendees only and takes place on Tuesday, the day before panels begin, between 8am and noon. Please note: registrant contact information will be shared with the Career Course instructor ahead of the session.

8:00 AM Career Course: Playing Games with Political Violence

12:00 PM Centre-Ville, Fairmont The Queen Elizabeth - In terms of both classroom engagement and learning of skills and content, using simulations, games and exercises can be very useful tools to help students learn the material and how to apply theories to actual activity. While teaching political violence can be hard, using games and exercises can help students understand it in a way that just reading a book or article cannot. This workshop will introduce participants to a number of games and exercise that require little preparation and can be used effectively in class. We will play several of these games together, debrief them, and discuss the effectiveness of these techniques and ideas for further applications.

This Career Course is open to pre-registered, pre-paid attendees only and takes place on Tuesday, the day before panels begin, between 8am and noon. Please note: registrant contact information will be shared with the Career Course instructor ahead of the session.

2024 ANNUAL CONVENTION CALL

PUTTING RELATIONALITY AT THE CENTRE OF INTERNATIONAL STUDIES

INTERNATIONAL STUDIES ASSOCIATION'S 65TH ANNUAL CONVENTION
APRIL 3RD - 6TH, 2024 | SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA, USA

2024 ISA PRESIDENT

Laura J. Shepherd | University of Sydney

2024 PROGRAM CHAIRS

Shweta Singh | South Asian University

Research on international politics explores and is implicated in the (un)making of relationships of all kinds: networks of formal and informal political actors, and the impact these networks have on decision-making; diplomacy and statecraft within and beyond the institutions of global governance; imperial impositions, patriarchal violence and capitalist dispossession; and social and community movements and how these interact and interconnect with, and contest and challenge and reimagine national government, the state, and transnational governance. Beyond those engagements with prominent forms of global political practice, scholars also examine relations of humans with non-human animals, land, and waterways, relations of value and care, and social relations of power and subjectification such as capital, race, religion, sexuality and gender.

How can a focus on relations and relationality reinvigorate the study and practice of the international and the political, and the commitments and embodiment of the international politics scholar? Indigenous, Decolonial, Black, Intersectional, Abolitionist, Queer and Marxist Feminist lineages of thought on, and as, relationality offer a fundamental onto-epistemological challenge to a discipline that has at times focused narrowly on actors in a vacuum, and been bound by hetero-patriarchal frameworks of modern/colonial state governance and law (see below for a list of readings that have inspired our thinking on, and with, these traditions). They challenge taken-for-granted assumptions about the nature of knowledge, of becoming international politics scholars, of the objects and subjects of our scholarship, and of the processes and relations that our discipline might have responsibilities to honour and engage with.

Relational thinking requires recognising how human and non-human entities and things come into being through relations. These could be relations of consensus, recognition and mutuality, or relations of violence, violation and dissonance, or complex combinations of these. A focus on relations, rather than entities or things, encourages us to consider how these relations are developed, imposed, nurtured, ruptured, restored, remembered and/or revitalised.

Our work is enabled or disabled by the relations around us. This can bring scholarly attention to the communities that sustain us, by the humans and non-humans whose wisdoms nourishes us, and the complexities in nurturing relations and communities of care. Shifting our focus to examine relations at local, national, international, and transnational levels reveals how everyday practices of carelessness, dispossession and erasure are reproduced, as well as ways that care and community foster, enable, reflect, and hold the possibility of transforming politics. A focus on relations also makes visible the ongoing differential impacts of Covid-19 in this not 'post-pandemic' moment and highlights their impact on the (im)possibilities of pluralising our discipline. Such a focus can also bring sickness, vulnerability and disability to the fore of our reflections and analyses as sites of wisdom, not weakness.

This conference aims to create space for ISA members to explore what happens when we put relations and relationality at the centre of our thinking about international politics. We encourage participants to think about how centring relations helps us think about how these relations are sustained or ruptured, generated or denied, and with what effects. Themes and topics to explore include:

- How does attending to power as a relation challenge conventional international relations thinking?
- How does a relational approach to international studies shift assumptions about what 'counts,' what gets counted, and who does the counting within 'our' discipline?
- What do intellectual-political traditions historically on the margins of international studies, such as Indigenous, Decolonial, Marxist Feminist, Black and Abolitionist theories, suggest about the concept of relationality and the complexities of care? How might these theoretical traditions reshape and challenge theory, disciplinarity, and the figure of the theorist?
- How might we unsettle linear, universal disciplinary histories through a focus on relationality?
- How do relational approaches to international studies travel and translate between Global North and South?
- What does a focus on relations and relationality tell us about the complexities of care, sickness and disability, and creating communities of care in and beyond international politics?
- How can a focus on relations and relationality deepen and complexify our understanding of power and our responsibilities to unsettle unequal and imperial power relations?
- How does a focus on relations and relationality make visible the relations of care that enable the (re)production of international studies and politics of disciplinarity and institutionality?
- How do social movements, civil society organisations and populist movements practice and/or fragment community? In what ways do governance institutions foster and/or inhibit senses and enactments of community?
- What kinds of communities are salient in international studies? How do pedagogies of care and community illuminate understandings of the international and the political?
- How might concepts of care and community resonate with studies of diplomacy and statecraft?
- How might feminist theories of care resonate with peace and conflict studies, particularly those attentive to post-conflict reconstruction and recovery?
- How does a focus on relations and care bring bodies into focus? How can this focus shed light on the meanings of illness and recovery, especially in the shadow of wars, pandemics, and other ongoing losses?
- How might we unsettle exclusionary disciplinary practices and structures through a commitment to care?
- How can we cultivate coalitions and solidarities within and beyond international studies scholarship and activism?
- How might relational thinking envision the past-present-futures of international studies?
